STRIKE IS TO GO ON.

Conference of Warring Sides at White House Came to Nothing.

Unionism Was the Rock It Split Upon—Operators Refused to Consider Any Proposition Made by President John Mitchell.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The great coal conference between the president and representatives of the operators and the miners came to an end at the temporary white house yesterday afternoon with a failure to reach an agreement. Apparently the rock upon which the conference split was recognition of the miners' union. The president had urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare; the miners, through the president of their union, had expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the president and to enter an agreement to be in force for a period of one to five years, and the operators, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, had squarely refused arbitration, had denounced the miners' labor organization as a lawless and anarchistic body with which they could and would have no dealings, had demanded federal troops to ensure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region and court proceedings against the miners' union, and had offered, if the men returned to work, to submit grievances at individual collieries to the decision of the judges of the court of common pleas for the district of Pennsylvania in which the colliery was located. There the matter closed. Last night both the miners and the operators were still in the city, but to-day they return to their several localities, each saying at a late hour that the struggle will continue.

It was a remarkable chapter in the economic history of the country that was written yesterday. For the first time the president of the republic had intervened directly between the great forces of capital and labor in an effort to avert what he himself regarded as a great national calamity. The result was to bring the principals in the great controversy face to face with the whole country eagerly intent and watchful of their doings. Technically the issues between the two great forces stand as they did before the president summoned the representatives of the contending forces to the national capital, and, forgetting his own acute suffering, besought them for love of the great country wherein they dwelt and out of pity for the countless throng of suffering poor, to adjust their differences and work together in peace for the common weal.

DEATH OF FAMOUS SOLDIER.

Gen. Bela M. Hughes Was President of the Overland Stage & Express Company in the Early 60s.

Denver, Col., Oct. 4.—Gen. Bela M. Hughes, one of the most noted characters in the early history of the west, died at his home in this city Friday morning, aged 86. He was president in the early 60s of the Overland Stage & Express company, which operated between the Missouri river and the Pacific coast. He was also the first president of the Denver & Pacific railroad and was prominent in other railroad developments. Mr. Hughes was born in Kentucky and educated for the law under the guidance of his father, who was a prominent jurist. This pursuit he followed with success at periods during his life until 1893, when he retired. He began his legal career at St. Joseph, Mo., and served that state in the legislature. Mr. Hughes was distinguished as a soldier, having served through the Black Hawk war with honor.

Two Corporations at War.
St. Joseph, Mo., Oct. 4.—The Santa Fe threatens to increase the rate on live stock three cents per 100 over the rate to Kansas City on October 10 if Swift & Co. does not give the railroad a fair share of the packing products to haul. This would mean a complete loss to St. Joseph of all live stock in the territory tributary to the Santa Fe. Three cents per 100 would amount to about 87 per cent.

Will Make Another Attempt.
Chicago, Oct. 4.—Another attempt will be made to combine the principal plow manufacturers of the country into one organization. Two previous efforts failed. Charles H. Gen. Funston was introduced to the large crowd in the Chautauqua tabernacle and said: "I do not appear before you to make a speech. I made a speech, you know, in Denver six months ago and have had a sore throat ever since. I merely want to thank you for the splendid reception you have given me. I am pleased to meet my old friends and neighbors."

All are supposed to have been killed. Three bodies have been taken out. A special train left Seattle with the coroner and physicians. The Lawson mines are the property of the Pacific Coast company.

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 3.—Bishop Morrison, of the Iowa Episcopal church, announces that hereafter he will not go behind the record of the courts in divorce cases. Divorced persons who have secured decrees on any other ground but infidelity are prohibited from marrying again. The practice of basing testimony of infidelity at the request of the divorcee who has failed to plead statutory grounds is abolished.

Fell 127 Feet and Lived.

Joplin, Mo., Oct. 3.—W. L. Rush, a miner, residing one mile west of Joplin, miraculously escaped a horrible death yesterday near his home. He was thrown head foremost into a shaft 127 feet deep, but arose to the surface of the water, which was 27 feet deep in the bottom, and lustily called for help. When he was hoisted out it was found that he was uninjured beyond a few scratches.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 3.—The jury has returned a verdict convicting Frederick W. Ames, ex-chief of police, of receiving a bribe. The chief of police and his brother, A. A. Ames, mayor of Minneapolis, were both indicted for conspiracy to extort money from 35 women, who were to pay $15 to $30 per month for protection.

STRONG AGAINST TRUSTS.

New York Democratic Platform Wants Government to Own Anthracite Mines—Hill in Control.

Saratoga, N. Y., Oct. 2.—The committee on contested seats in the democratic state convention agreed to report to the convention against the seating of either the Devery or Goodwin delegates in the Ninth New York assembly district. All other contests were settled in favor of the so-called Hill delegations. In deciding the Devery contest a number of heated speeches were made and when it was explained that neither Devery or Goodwin was recognized, a motion to that effect was carried with but few dissenting votes.

Bird S. Coler, ex-comptroller of Greater New York and the choice of ex-Gov. Hill, was nominated for governor.

The platform calls for steadfast fidelity to American principles, for the lack of which it arraigns the republican party; demands the return to the principles of Thomas Jefferson to stop demoralization of the country; opposes trusts that injuriously affect consumer and employer and drive out small manufacturers, and especially condemns the so-called beef and coal trusts for "unreasonably depriving the people of necessities of life." Restriction of the amassing of wealth is advocated and the amendment of the tariff law by placing the necessities of life on the free list is demanded. The money question is ignored.

The declaration regarding national ownership of anthracite mines is as follows: "We advocate the national ownership and operation of the anthracite coal mines by the exercise of the right of eminent domain with just compensation to owners. Ninety per cent. of the anthracite coal deposits of the world being in the state of Pennsylvania, national ownership can but be in the interest of the whole people."

FOR THE CANTEN.

Secretary of War Root Will Ask Congress to Repeal Present Law.

Reports from Military Posts Declare Moral Condition of Troops is Worse Than When Liquor Was Sold on Post Exchanges.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Elihu Root, secretary of war, will recommend that congress at its next session repeal the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating beverages on military reservations. He will urge that the canteen system, which has been a source of considerable agitation for many years, be re-established. The secretary will make this recommendation upon the strength of reports made by department commanders and upon investigations which the war department has conducted relative to the effect of the abandonment of the system. It is doubtful if any legislation can be enacted on this subject at the short session. Mr. Root's recommendation is certain to arouse the antagonism of the W. C. T. U. and kindred organizations, whose years of hard work accomplished the abolition of the canteen system.

Gen. Miles does not agree to the position taken by the secretary of war. It is expected that he will consider the matter in his annual report and will probably make strong recommendations against the repeal of the present law. Regardless of the attitude of Gen. Miles, it is admitted at the war department that Secretary Root is going to take a prominent stand in favor of the re-establishment of the canteen. He contends that it is better to allow the enlisted men to have the privilege of drinking beer and light wines. It is claimed at the war department that the canteen has been succeeded by low dives just outside the army posts, into which soldiers are lured by unprincipled men and dissolute women, with the result that they are usually kept there until their last cent is gone.

After a series of skirmishes on Monday and Tuesday of this week the Moros retreated into six forts on the shores of the lake. When a courier left Maciu Tuesday for Camp Vicars Capt. Pershing was preparing to assault the last Moro stronghold. The American column reached the former camp at Maciu Sunday night. On Monday the Moros opened fire on them with a brass cannon and rifles from a series of new forts which had been erected since Capt. Pershing's first visit to the place. The battery under Capt. McNair scaled a ridge commanding the position of the Moros and shelled them out. The engineers under Capt. Morrow had constructed a trail over the swamp flanking the Moro position. The column of Capt. Pershing's column crossed the swamp by the trail and captured and destroyed three of the Moro forts. The Moros stood but a short while and ran as soon as the artillery opened on them. Twenty Moros were killed. There were no casualties among the Americans.

THE NEWEST FAD.

Is the "Face Book," Which Takes the Place of the Old-Time Album.

Quite the latest idea is to have a face book. Instead of the old-style album, a collection of drawing paper sheets are bound together, and the friends of the book owner are expected to do the rest, says the Washington Star. A book sometimes made of heavy, coarse white linen, and is a desirable and durable style, with the cover of brilliant crimson, deep blue or yellow linen. If a clever sketch drawn in black is put on it, so much the better. Here are lines that may be written in fancy letters below the sketch:

"Tis a face book rare,
And friends, I dare,
To trace its pages o'er;
With what is in
Their minds to him,
However it may be bore."

It is the proper paper to introduce the book at five o'clock teas and Sunday evening suppers. In it each guest is asked to draw a head of some sort—girl, man, child or animal. It does not in the least matter if they cannot draw at all. They must do their best, or worst. Usually the worst is very desirable, because it makes a laugh. The amateur artists must sign their names or write lines descriptive of their efforts. The protests against thus committing themselves are sometimes loud and deep. No attention should be paid to them.

The most amusing pages in the face book are apt to be the ones in which detached human features are drawn. For instance, there may be a nose done by one friend and an ear by another, just the tip end of the dimpled chin by a third or the sketch of a hand. It is a good plan to have the pages with these odds and ends of features sketched in without photographs. A good line at the head of the page would be: "By their works ye shall know them." These are the guessing leaves of the face book, and many a jolly hour may be passed by visitors who try to guess the names of the artists. Some women insist that musical friends shall express a sentiment by means of a bar of music. The selection of the bar is made from a popular song, and the first initial note, while the last one appears above the closing one. This helps out the guesses who cannot read music, but who is familiar with the songs of the day. Other face book owners, with original minds, insist that only flowers or plants or trees be drawn on the pages. A glance at some of these makes one wonder to see how little form in flowers is appreciated. Good lines at the head of the page would be: "By their works ye shall know them."
